

HOUSING PLACEMENT REPORT: JANUARY 2015

Background

In 2013, How's Nashville partners began tracking a critical performance measure toward the goal of ending homelessness: the number of people experiencing homelessness who obtain permanent housing each month. Without this performance data, it is difficult to determine if the collaborative work of How's Nashville and other efforts to end homelessness in Davidson County are actually working.

Each month, organizations that help people who are homeless identify and obtain permanent housing report their housing placement data to the Metropolitan Homelessness Commission. Data from HMIS (Homeless Management Information System) and other relevant databases are also used to help track monthly housing placements. This report only includes data of individuals and families who meet the definition of “chronic” homelessness (1 year of continuous homelessness or 4 episodes in 3 years), and/or who are vulnerable (higher risk of mortality), and/or have higher acuity (many complicating and severe life stressors).

A list of How's Nashville partners who work tirelessly to end homelessness is available at howsnashville.org.

Data

From June 4, 2013, to January 1, 2015, 900 people experiencing chronic and/or vulnerable homelessness obtained permanent housing – 46 per month average (12-month rolling average). Here is a breakdown by month:

Other details about our community housing placement numbers for December 2014:

- 58 people were housed in December 2014 including 9 families with 15 total dependents.
- 40% are vulnerable (at-risk of premature death) and meet the definition of chronic homelessness.
- 60% meet the definition of “chronic” homelessness but are not vulnerable.
